

Victor:

OK that's fine. Well it goes back a little while really because um, in recent sort of years I've sort of gone down into Oxford on the bus. And you sort of get near, sitting near the kids and all the rest of it and you hear all the different things they say and do and it sort of frightened me off quite a fair bit to be fair about it. I was a little bit anxious with what they were doing and what they were saying. I thought a lot of them were quite angry sometimes and some of the things they were talking about I was quite uh, surprised. I wont go into detail but I was quite surprised about it. So I had a very sort of uncertain sort of concept of what would be expected.
