

I am 42 years old. I live in Plaisir: a little, small city in — close to Paris. I live with my wife, my daughter and my son.

I graduated in business school — in French business school. I started thinking about my MBA one year ago. If you want to progress in your career, you have to study again and again. I decided to choose MBA programme because it's very general. It's a global education. The world is changing a lot: we'll see populism, digital revolution. So, I decided to follow an MBA programme to understand the future world.

To find my MBA programme, I searched two words: 'MBA' and 'distance learning'. The prospectus was very useful for me, yes, and lots of information about the price, about the euros, the different years and the different steps of the programme, yes: very, very clear. The main difference between distance learning and classroom is the price: it's cheaper.

I've been studying since - seven months, yes. Every six weeks I have to submit something, so: an assignment. And it's big work, long work, and hard work as well. We have to explain a theory and to prove this theory, so there is the evidence of this theory: this is critical thinking, you know.

It's very important for me that my children see I'm studying, because the world is changing. My son wants to be a pilot in the future. I say, "Okay, you study for that, but don't forget something: you have to learn to go back to study." When I started my course, I prepared myself in my head, you know, and I prepared my environment. I say, "I need to buy a new laptop, an office, a chair!"

I like this MBA programme because lots of people come, all over the world. And we have people from Japan, Saudi Arabia, France, Belgium and so on. So, it's a small world. I like that. I'm a social person and I like meeting lots of people all over the world.

I'm a marketer, and I love and I like innovation, you know. So, every day, I discover a new field. You have to keep learning in your life. Yes, I think it's very important because if our country, or if French people, do not understand the world, I think we decline, yes, for the future.

This MBA programme is a big change of myself, you know. During three years, I'm sure I'll change at the end of the MBA. I don't know, really, what I want to do in the future. Maybe I will be the next entrepreneur, maybe.
