

Innovation: The Environment

Innovation: The Environment

With global warming and climate change increasing, what can we do to tackle this problem? This album explores the economics of lowering carbon omissions and how Britain is tackling this problem, through expert analysis and opinions on carbon taxes, carbon reduction, renewable energy and environmental damage. This material forms part of the Open University course DD309 Doing economics: people, markets and policy.