

The Final Cut

Wrapping up

You've seen all the piece that you've used and you might have discarded a lot of material. But the person watching it only gets to see what you let them see. The edit is ultimately the most powerful tool that you have. The decision to say this is where I want to show this picture, this is where I want somebody to hear this piece of sound which... The idea that the camera never lies, with edited film is definitely never true.