

LYNNE JOHNSON: These days, it's very unusual to spend your whole career in one job or with one organisation. But what's your next step? A promotion, a different organisation, or perhaps a new challenge completely? Whatever you decide, this free course will help you to explore ways to make the time you need to keep up with an ever-changing sector and career landscape and help you to be better prepared for applications and interviews. You'll look at external factors that change your sector, for better or worse, how to develop relationships and networks, and you'll start to analyse where you can thrive and what opportunities are open to you, including in the hidden job market and even self-employment. But dreams need shaping to turn into reality. So we also look at action planning and whether you need a mentor to help you land your dream job.