

OpenLearn free course trailer

Diversity and inclusion in the workplace

Asif Sadiq:

Diversity is not a problem we're trying to solve, it's an opportunity we must all embrace.

Diversity is not about a particular group, a particular organisation, it's about all of us, every single one of us, no matter what the size of your organisation, how big or how small.

Diversity might look different within our organisations, within different teams, within different parts of our business, but inclusion is that common thread. We can all be more inclusive and create a workplace that truly thrives. Why is diversity and inclusion so important?

Well, we know for a fact, organisations that are more inclusive are more productive, more innovative, more creative. And to achieve all that is critical for our future, for the future of our staff, for the future of our organisations.

So, let's all come together and create a workplace that's truly inclusive, where we can all be our authentic self.